DEAR MEMBERS AND FRIENDS,

We had an incredible first harvest at Hawks View as Mother Nature extended a warm welcome to our family!

The 2017 growing season started off late in the north Willamette Valley. In our Chehalem Mountain AVA, the winter rains lasted well into spring with bud break and flowering happening weeks behind the average.

Once the clear weather finally arrived, it held, and we saw some of the most consistently warm ripening conditions ever seen in the valley, according to our peers and our winemaker Don Crank. While total days of sunlight were high, the real story is the lack of temperatures above 95°F. The heat spikes that were difficult to manage in the past few vintages, were completely absent in the 2017 growing season.

Another important factor influencing the vintage was the generous fruit set afforded the vineyard in 2017. The intense sun was evenly matched by the prolific production by our vines. Even more helpful, the weather stayed mostly dry until we had picked off every block of the estate. Rarely, if ever, has the north Willamette Valley created such a consistently high-quality vintage, with such good yields, where we could harvest so late with dry conditions.

In conclusion, we made a lot of potentially great wine for ourselves and grew fine grapes for our outside winery clients. The wines will eventually speak for themselves, but until they do, rest assured that we are all in store for some of the best wines to emerge from the property in years.

We look forward to seeing you at the winery soon to taste the 2016s, and the 2017s as they are released.

Cheers,

Conradis
